Re: Cancer Knowledge Network Childhood Cancer Resource Library

Dear Friend in the Community:

My name is Jonathan Agin. Some of you know me through my advocacy work and writings. I lost my four-year old daughter Alexis Agin to DIPG in January 2011. Since that time, I have shared Alexis' journey and my thoughts on childhood cancer and gained a tremendous amount of support from a broad spectrum of foundations, entities and individuals alike. For the past several years I have been proud to serve as the CKN Childhood Cancer Awareness and Advocacy Co-Editor. (www.cancerkn.com) In this capacity, we have collaboratively built an online publication that is populated with a substantial library of user friendly and substantive pieces aimed at individuals in the childhood cancer community and beyond. These pieces provide helpful information for parents and caregivers who are dealing with a current diagnosis and those parents and caregivers who have unfortunately lost a child to cancer.

I am writing you today on behalf of Cancer Knowledge Network to invite you to offer this resource to your followers, members and supporters in hopes that the library provides added information and resources. This is a free library and CKN is absolutely not asking for any remuneration in return. The purpose is to continue to provide a resource for parents and caregivers going through the diagnosis or the loss of a child to increase the awareness of the existence of this collection of articles. In addition, we invite the submission of new pieces to further populate this library and create a more extensive collection of articles. I hope that through your linking to the library or providing the library on your site to your supporters, we further provide a galvanizing outlet for the community to continue to insist on better treatment of our children with cancer.

CKN is Produced by Multimed Inc., Publisher of Current Oncology

Please let us know if you would like additional information or if you would like to set up a time to discuss CKN and this library and how it can fit within your mission and foundation. Together, we can increase the understanding of what a parent and caregiver undergoes through the course of a journey with childhood cancer and beyond.

Sincerely,

Jonathan Eric Agin, JD
